

Barns such as these were the most conspicuous structures along the Carson River route. Barns dwarfed dwellings and were impressively related to the source of pioneer power – horsepower.

When there was a blacksmith nearby, the barn became the service station of their time.

The variety of roof styles suggests that there were several sources from which the builders took their designs.

Hugh Park Barn

Israel Jones Barn

Dangberg Home Ranch Barn

Scossa Ranch Barn